

A fast rising band in northern Utah entertaining the stage is Sage Junction. Sharply executing the best country and classic rock covers from past and present, Sage Junction is able to grab the crowd's attention with their energetic sound and tunes to which people of all ages and musical tastes can relate.

Sage Junction performs for many establishments throughout the northern part of Utah. The Outlaw Saloon, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and American Legion are just a few examples of Sage Junction's regular retreats. The band also frequents outdoors events such as Mountain Vista Days, North Shore Beach Bash, Peach Days, and the Box Elder and Weber County Fairs. No matter what the venue might be, Sage Junction has a connection with the crowd resulting in a large following of fans from around the region.

Sage Junction's special relationship and appreciation for their fans causes them to make certain everyone at any given show is moved by their music. They feel it is important to provide the variety that today's audience desires. Well-known country songs from artists such as George Strait, Keith Urban, Alan Jackson, and Dierks Bentley can be found in Sage Junction's performance. Classic rock songs like Pink Cadillac, Brown Eyed Girl, Take It Easy, and Sweet Home Alabama are played with an equal passion. While the band also performs other lesser-known songs, the ability to capture the audience's attention is ever present when Sage Junction takes the stage. Their passion for having fun is evident and prominent in the music played.

Band members include Jeff Rawlings (guitar and vocals); Neal Jensen (acoustic guitar and vocals); Don Rollins (bass and vocals); Dean Leach (lead guitar); Andrew Glasmacher (drums); Marlan Smith (steel guitar); and Bart Shane (sound engineer).

Sage Junction originated in the fall of 2007 when the two front men and guitarists, Jeff Rawlings and Neal Jensen, founded the band. Jeff and Neal come from strong musical family backgrounds. They have both been singing and playing with various professional groups throughout Utah, Colorado, and Idaho. The two are extremely unique individuals who have found a common bond in making music.

Backing up Jeff and Neal vocally and on bass guitar is Don Rollins who adds an incredible accent to the overall performance. Dean Leach and his smoking-hot Tele guitar add the leads that result in a remarkably full sound. Supplementing the mix with the signature country twang is Marlan Smith playing pedal steel and dobro. Providing the rhythmic stability of the band and injecting energy into the music, Andrew Glasmacher leads the percussion section. The group has been fortunate enough to integrate Bart Shane as sound engineer to intermingle the music with the surroundings.

With more shows on the horizon, Sage Junction is a band on a mission. Their goal is to not only bring unique harmonies and diverse performances to their music but to effectively and artistically convey their energy so that soon everyone will be dancing and singing along. Armed with three chords and a microphone, Sage Junction has a commitment to deliver the best in country and classic rock dance and entertainment music to their audience. Every member of the band has been performing professionally for many years and you'll find their level of entertainment to be of the highest quality. If you're looking for fun, variety, and an entertaining performance, then you'll love Sage Junction at your next event.

Contact information:

Jeff Rawlings
c/o Sage Junction
1255 E. 2650 N.
North Ogden, UT 84414
801.737.4996

info@sagejunction.com

<http://www.sagejunction.com>

